PRICE, FIVE CENTS.

BLAINE BETTER.

BUT DOES NOT VISIT THE STATE DEPARTMENT TO-DAY.

The Chilian Situation Unchanged—Message Waiting Report of Col. Remy's Investigation.

WASHINGTON Jan. 20.—Secretary Blaine was up and dressed at the usual time this morning. After breakfast he looked over his mail and attended to other routine business at his residence. It is scarcely probable that he will visit the state department to-day, although he may do so later if urgent matters require his attention. The secretary has almost entirely recovered his strength and apparently feels no bad effect from his indisposition of yesterday.

To all inquiries at his residence it is announced that Mr. Blaine is up and around as usual. It is not expected that the president's special message, together with the correspondence concerning the Chilian controversy, will be sent to congress to-day. It is now desired to incorporate the result of Col. Remy's investigation at Vallejo as an appendix, and that will require more time.

Matters will be expedited with all possible haste and presented to congress when everything is completed. The extreme secrecy now being maintained in regard to cablegrams received and sent renders it very difficult to secure information more reliable than mere conjecture. Whatever may be done in the future, it is certain at present that Chili has not apologized, and active preparation for war are steadily progressing.

MISSOURI TROOPS.

Adjutant-General Wickham is in Washington Looking Up Records.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Adjutant General Wickham and Joe Johnston, of the Adjutant-General's office, are making an effort to perfect the records of his office as to the service of Missouri troops in the war of the rebellion and the Mexican war, and his mission is to endeavor to induce the war department to permit copies to be made of rolls of Missouri troops of which there is no record in his office at the capital. The secretary of the treasury some time since placed the records of his department at the disposal of the general, but the war department has not yet made the concession. A precedent for the refusal of the war department was established some years ago, but it is expected that the objections then urged can be overcome in this case, since all Missouri rolls have been card indexed. General Wickham will return to Missouri as soon as he concludes this work and closes up his annual settlement with the war department, and Mr. Johnson will remain here in charge of the work.

THE DEAD PRINCE.

Funeral Services of the Late Duke of Clarence.

LONDON, Jan. 20.—Brief services were held over the body of the late Duke of Clarence in the parish church at Sandringham this morning, and afterward the body placed on a draped gun carriage for transportation to Windsor.

On arrival at the destination it was placed on a special train on the Great Eastern railway. Services at Sandringham were attended by the Prince of Wales, his household and Sister Victoria, who nursed the deceased duke.

The funeral party drove from Sandringham hall to the church, the tenantry of the Prince of Wales acting as pall bearers. The body was removed from the church, the Prince of Wales, Duke of Fife, the clergy and game keepers of the estate following on foot. The weather was clear and cold. All ceremonies at the parish church were very simple, but of a most impressive character.

The funeral train passed the outskirts of London at 2 o'clock; the request for privacy made by the royal family being everywhere respected. While the train was conveying the body of the duke to Windsor, minute guns were fired from war ships and forts throughout Great Britain and Ireland. In addition to the firing of guns, bells from nearly every church steeple in England were tolled during the whole time the body was on its way to Windsor. The special train carried leading members of the government to Windsor. There were also present deputations from the house of commons.

On the arrival at Windsor the body was taken from the train, and transferred to St. George's chapel, where the final services were held. In accordance with the programme before published, the body was then deposited in the crypt.

NOT GUILTY.

Hutton, Who Shot Deffenbaugh for Pursuing His Wife, Acquitted.

NEVADA, Mo., Jan. 20.—The case of the State against Thomas S. Hutton, charged with murder in the first degree, was concluded here today after a seven days' trial, the jury bringing in a verdict of "not guilty." Mr. Hutton shot and killed C. C. Deffenbaugh in this city on the afternoon of September 27. Deffenbaugh had pursued Hutton's wife with his attentions in such a way as to compromise her good name. He prevailed upon her to stop over night at Harrisonville, when she was on her way to Kansas City to meet her husband, and subsequently exhibited letters and her photograph in a saloon at Springfield, Mo., all of which he claimed to have received from her. The fact was communicated to Mr. Hutton by a friend, after he had been made acquainted with the Harrisonville affair. Soon afterward Deffenbaugh made his appearance here, and as soon as Hutton learned he was in the city he hunted him up and shot him.

Deffenbaugh was a professional lady killer and had two wives living in Illinois. His father was here during the trial with able counsel. The defense was emotional insanity and the jury agreed upon an acquittal on the first ballot. Hutton is connected with the Dwight Soda company. The verdict was generally approved here when the facts were all known.

TELLER ON SILVER.

Favors the Resolution for an International Conference.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—Early action will probably be taken by the finance committee of the senate upon the resolution of Senator Teller for an international conference to provide for the larger use of silver.

The committee will probably report the resolution favorably, although some slight changes may be recommended. Senator Teller said to a Press News correspondent: "I think the resolution will be reported. Some members of the committee think the power to proclaim the new ratio ought not to be vested in the president, but that he should report the result of the conference to congress for its action, and this may be required by the committee."

"What ratio do you think the conference will be likely to adopt?"

"I cannot foresee their action, but I should think that probably ratio of 15½ to 1 would be adopted, instead of our present ratio of 16 to 1."

REDUCING DUTIES.

Springer's Free Wool Bill Introduced in the House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—The senate calendar was taken up immediately after the usual routine proceedings. A number of public building bills passed at last session by the senate but which died in the house, being under consideration.

House.

WASHINGTON, Jan. 20.—During the morning hour the usual quota of bills and resolutions were introduced for reference, among them one by Springer, of California, authorizing the secretary of war to acquire land for military and coast defenses at Santiago, California, also a bill by Springer providing for the repeal of the duty on wool and reduction of duty on woolens. House adjourned at 12:50.

Will Sue for Damages.

Officer Murphy, who looks after the poor of the city, was chewing soap and having Officer Scally to fan him this afternoon over the fact that some one who applied for aid spelled his name "Merpha." This insinuation that he was a "Dago" was too much for the knight of the whistling billy and he yearns for gore.

Strings Will be Loosened.

From the Mexico Intelligencer.

Mexico is setting a right lively pace in the way of stakes and premiums for the Fair Associations of Missouri. If our Sedalia friends are in the mood for record-breaking, all they have to do is to loosen their purse-strings and come on.

OFFICIAL NOTICE.

The Governor Informs the Members of the Legislature of the Extra Session.

Hon. Mont Carnes, representing the Eastern district in the legislature, received this morning the governor's proclamation for an extra session to convene February 17th.

To it is attached the following letter from His Excellency:

JEFFERSON CITY, Jan. 18, 1892.
Hon. Mont Carnes, Sedalia, Mo.

DEAR SIR:—I have concluded to call an extra session of the general assembly and have fixed February 17, 1892, as the date of its convening. Have ordered a copy of the proclamation forwarded to you and you will learn the objects of the session therefrom.

I believe that a decided majority of the people now agree in considering an extra session advisable if not necessary, but such has not been the case hitherto, and if the session had been called earlier, it would have labored under the disadvantage of opposition from a large portion if not a majority of the people.

I trust you are in good health and will return to your duties re-invigorated and well equipped for legislative work.

In my judgment it is wise to confine legislation to the objects mentioned in the call, as a protracted session of the general assembly would not meet with approval from the people.

Respectfully,

DAVID R. FRANCIS.

This promises to be a memorable session as the university interests will be discussed with a vigor seldom shown in other questions.

ASSESSMENTS FOR 1892.

As Compared With 1891, the Books Show an Increase of Nearly $1,000,000.

The assessment books for 1892 have just been completed by County Assessor J. M. Logan, and a comparison of them with the books of 1891 show, as a matter of facts and figures, that the wealth of Pettis county has increased about one million dollars within the past twelve months. The following classification is given:

REAL ESTATE.
Farm lands.....	$1,508,885
City and town lots.....	2,704,262
Railroads.....	60,525
Total.....	$4,450,72

PERSONAL PROPERTY.
Horses.....	$400,245
Mules.....	142,535
Cattle.....	395,120
Sheep.....	17,315
Hogs.....	68,025
Money, notes, etc.....	522,700
All other property.....	581,335
Banks and corporations.....	470,041
Total.....	$2,604,576

The total valuation is $9,064,284, an increase of $870,438 over the assessment of 1891, a showing in which all the citizens of Pettis county may take commendable pride.

TO SECURE THE PROPERTY.

James Wood of Chicago Goes to Austin to Look Up Jimmy Dunn's Real Estate.

James Wood, of Wood Bros., live stock commission men, Chicago, was a southbound passenger to Austin, Texas, this morning to investigate the amount and condition of the property owned by J. Ellis Godlove, alias James Dunn, now in the county jail awaiting trial for forgery.

Mr. Wood is a member of the firm to whom the cattle on the forged bill of lading were consigned. The firm lost over $5,000 by the forgery and of course is anxious to secure themselves from the loss.

Godlove had a controlling interest in the Austin Statesman and real estate in that city to the value of about $8,000. Besides this he has options on a large amount of very valuable property whose estimated value is something over $50,000.

If possible, Mr. Wood intends to secure the desirable options by the necessary payments and in this way make the best of a bad affair.

Circuit Court.

Alfred Dyer vs Belle Dyer, divorce; decree for plaintiff as prayed for in petition.

Frank M. Close et al., ex parte, partition; by consent report confirmed and $60 attorney's fee to H. C. Sinnett.

City of Sedalia to use of Wells & Craven vs J. C. Thompson et al.; bond; by consent plaintiff has until first day of next term to file amended petition.

Mattie J. Sallee vs R. C. Sneed, conversion; demurrer to evidence sustained, judgement for defendants, plaintiff files motion for a new trial, heard and overruled and plaintiff has till first day of next term to file bill of exceptions.

Ada C. Price vs John P. Higgins; damages; motion to strike out sustained; defendant files bill of exceptions.

A Rosse & Co., vs First National bank; garnishee; Norton & Higginbotham; motion to hear bill of exceptions prior to determining application for change of venue overruled; application for change of venue sustained and cause sent to Benton county; defendants except to everything.

W. J. Murley vs Missouri Pacific Railway company, damages; defendant's motion to strike out plaintiff's amended petition overruled; application for change of venue denied.

Emily C. Stephens et al. vs Kate Stephens et al.; petition; plaintiffs file petition and affidavit of non-residence.

BACK WITH A BRIDE.

Rev. W. B. North Returns from the South, Accompanied by Mrs. North.

Not many days ago Rev. W. B. North, the new pastor of the M. E. church, south, of Sedalia, slipped quietly out of the city and turned his face once more toward the sunny South. Few, if any, of his church members suspected his mission to North Carolina, but a day or so after his departure the rumor became current that the talented young minister would soon return to Sedalia with a bride from the grand and famous old state mentioned above.

The rumor was well founded, for, on the afternoon of January 14, in the town of Stem, North Carolina, Mr. North took unto himself a wife in the person of Miss Emma Stem. Coming by way of St. Louis, the happy couple arrived here this morning and will henceforth be at home at the parsonage adjoining the church.

The south is noted for its attractive and accomplished women. They are in harmony with the balmy skies and the flowery fields, and their devotion and affection are traits of character especially peculiar to the sunny land of Dixie. Out from among these daughters of North Carolina the good minister made a most happy selection; for his fair young bride is representative of all that is lovely and charming in gracious womanhood.

As to the bridegroom, himself, the DEMOCRAT shall not attempt to add any fulsome words of praise. During his brief residence in the Queen City he has proved to be a genial gentleman, a popular pastor, an able and enterprising pulpit orator.

To him and his wife this paper, in common with his congregation and other friends, extends its best wishes. May the sunshine grow brighter along their pathway as it stretches forth from the happy hour that witnessed the union of these two hearts.

WARRANT SWORN OUT.

A Barbers House Keeper to be Arrested for Running a House on Pacific Street.

A warrant was sworn out this afternoon for the arrest of Jane Hayes, No. 212 Pacific street, for keeping a bawdy house.

The Hayes woman lives there with her daughter and has created considerable disturbance of late.

This morning a general knock-down-and-drag-out fight was indulged in, which resulted in John Barron, a stone mason, swearing out a warrant.

The woman is said to be responsible in a great measure for her daughter's career and insists upon having all the money the latter secures. When refused, she proceeds to give the girl a beating.

COATS STOLEN.

Bold Thieves Make a Raid on the Dummies in Front of J. K. Hart's Store.

At an early hour this morning one or more bold and daring thieves proceeded to rob the dummies in front of J. K. Hart's store, on East Third street.

Two dress coats were stolen and no traces left to convict the culprits.

Large Premium List.

At a meeting of the new board of Missouri State Fair directors held at the Commercial club rooms yesterday afternoon it was determined to offer $50,000 in purses and stakes, which will attract the best horses in the country. Secretary A. L. Burr was elected a delegate to the Missouri State Fair circuit meeting to be held at Moberly next Saturday.

CLAIM AGENT IN TOWN.

W. SPRIGGS, of the M. K. & T., is Here to Settle With Several Claimants.

Mr. W. Spriggs, claim agent of the M. K. & T. railway, with headquarters at Fort Scott, arrived in Sedalia last night and has been engaged to-day in working settlements with certain persons who suffered loss of property the past year by fire from passing M. K. & T. locomotives.

J. C. Thompson has a claim amounting to $86 for the loss of corn and hedge fence; J. R. Dunlap, $57.40 for the same; Clark Ritchie, $22 for the burning of hedge fence; and Z. Haight $15.50 for the loss of hedge fence and prairie hay.

Mr. Spriggs informed a DEMOCRAT reporter this morning that the claims allowed for losses by fire alone for 1891 amounted to about $86,000.

J. C. Thompson has a claim amounting to $86 for the loss of corn and hedge fence; J. R. Dunlap, $57.40 for the same; Clark Ritchie, $22 for the burning of hedge fence; and Z. Haight $15.50 for the loss of hedge fence and prairie hay.

"GOOD EVENING!"Have You Read THE DEMOCRAT?

With all of his jingo policy, Blaine never was a man who loved war.

No other third class city in the state has done as good work as Sedalia in the line of street improvement.

SPRINGFIELD wants a state road convention. Such a meeting should be held, at some central, accessible point.

THE coming presidential campaign will be one of live, clear issues. There will be no room for the bloody-shirt.

CONGRESS has commenced its work of retrenchment and reform by refusing to pass an extravagant public printing bill.

THE citizens of Saline county will hold a mass-meeting in Marshall next Thursday to take steps to secure the state university.

SEDALIA business men are as enterprising as any in the state and they see clearly how the building of manufactories would benefit the city.

STATE politics quieted down considerably during the cold weather, but it will revive as the time for the assembling of the legislature approaches.

It is understood that the committee on coinage, weights and measures, which meets to-day, will at once report a free silver bill to the house.

A FOREIGN war that would cause the people to forget the evils that are oppressing them and hindering the development of business enterprises would be a double calamity.

FULTON secured the Christian Orphan school, which was removed from Camden Point, but we have not heard of any charge of embezzlement being preferred against that thriving town as yet.

THE Hannibal Journal was seventeen years old last Sunday. It is one of those whose merits increase with age, and its editor, Col. John A. Knott, has made it one of the best papers in the state.

A MISSOURI jury, as Missouri juries always will, acquitted Hutton who shot and killed Duffenbaugh in defense of his wife's honor. The despoiler of female virtue and the wanton wrecker of happy homes forfeits his right to life when he starts upon his infamous course, and the husband or father who ends the career of such a man does society a real service.

ALL of the improvements in the building and equipping of war vessels have been discounted by the invention of a gun which is warranted to sink any vessel afloat at a distance of five and a half miles. Uncle Sam now has the gun that will throw the irresistible ball, and now any nation that expects to stand up against him in naval warfare must provide itself with vessels that have impenetrable walls. Then the old problem will be solved by actual experiment.

DEMOCRATS should remember that there is to be an election in this city next spring and in all probability the capital removal question will come up while the officials then elected are in office. The legislature will be democratic and will naturally look with especial favor upon a city which shows a constantly increasing democratic majority. The next election will be of the utmost importance to Sedalia.

UNIVERSITY REMOVAL.
The St. Louis Republic undertakes editorially to squelch the university removal proposition, but signally fails to present any weighty argument against it.

The Republic's first proposition, that a retired, foggy, sleepy town is the proper place for a university, needs only to be stated to be rejected by the live, enterprising people of Missouri.

If the university were a kindergarten there might be some propriety in locating it out in the country where the pupils would be in no danger of being run over by the cars.

But the students attending the university, as a rule, are young men and not children.

Besides there is, in proportion to population, as much of vice and temptation in a town like Columbia as there is in a city like Sedalia, Moberly, Clinton or Marshall, while there is no sort of protection for the state's property and none of the nineteenth century improvements which mark an enterprising community.

The Republic cites the village of Rugby in England as an evidence that first class educational institutions can be built up in the country.

That proves nothing, for there are no means of judging what its educational institutions would have been had Rugby been a city instead of a village.

There are some pretty good schools in Paris, France, and St. Louis herself has by far the finest college in the state to-day.

So, one or two isolated instances prove nothing. The fact remains that in spite of persistent effort and large appropriations the university has not been a success at Columbia.

But the Republic's second proposition, that it is morally wrong to remove a state institution, is even more untenable than the first.

A state institution is the property of the people as absolutely as is any manufacturing establishment or dry goods store the property of its owner.

The people of the state have the same legal and moral right to move one of their institutions that the owner of a plow factory has to move his manufacturing business.

If we admit that the Republic's proposition is true, then we must hold that a man once embarked in business must never remove to a more favorable locality, because of the injury such removal would work to his old neighbors.

According to this theory Colonel Jones had not the moral right to tear himself away from Florida, where he was a most valuable citizen, and move up to St. Louis and confer the benefits derived from his presence and labors upon that city.

To be sure, we do not know that Florida offered Col. Jones any monetary consideration to induce him to locate there, but there was some kind of inducement and, morally, any other inducement should bind as firmly as a pecuniary one.

There is only one thing for the general assembly to look at when it comes to the removal of a state institution, and that is the real interest of the people of the state.

Such institutions are not established and maintained for the purpose of building up or keeping up a favored locality.

They are established for the convenience or welfare of the people, and should be removed whenever and wherever the interest of the people require.

COL. DICK DALTON will, at an early day, talk to the democrats of Sedalia on the subject of party organization. It is a matter that has already received some attention, but not half as much as its importance deserves.

A DISAGREEABLE SUBJECT.Grip Contagion Conveyed by the Habit of Indiscriminate Spitting.

From the Philadelphia Record.

The announced discovery of the influenza bacillus, if it shall be verified on further investigation will give intelligent direction both in the manner of prevention and cure. Dr. Pfeiffer, who announces the identification of the cause of the grip, says he "believes that the sputum of persons suffering from influenza is the medium of contagion in that disease." If this be a fact the path lies open to an effort for limitation upon the part of the whole community.

Persons affected with the disease should spit into vessels containing a disinfecting preparation. All bed clothes, clothes or rags used about a sufferer, liable to infection, should be burned, or when cleansed, soaked in some germ-destroying fluid. The germs may be conveyed from one person to another by means of a drinking cup, spoon or other utensil of common use, or even a kiss may carry contagion hid under the wing of love.

It is a well established fact that the disgusting habit of indiscriminate spitting is a fruitful source of unintended mischiefs. The seeds of consumption as well as of grip are sown broadcast by this means. The streets, coaches, cars, places of public assemblage and private apartments even, are made foul, filthy and infectious by inveterate spitters. Some of them wear good clothes and pretend to be gentlemen. It may be admitted there has been a gradual improvement ever since Dickens wrote his "American Notes," and held us up to ridicule as the champion expectators; but there is room for much more.

We should, in this respect, at least, carry our parlor behavior with us wherever we go. That this may be easily done is proved by the example of women, who seldom or never offend in this particular. If the visitation of grip should have the effect of scaring the general public into a reformation of the spitting habit, it might be the means of ultimately saving more lives than it has destroyed.

Banish Slang from the Home.

From the New York Recorder.

Slang is a note of savagery on our hearths and in our drawing rooms. It replaces the easy grace of courtesy by a familiarity often tinged with indelicacy, and is incompatible with that respect and deference that the noblest ideal of womanhood demands. And coarse speech is speedily followed by loose manners.

No pure woman will speak a lingo into which it would be a kind of blasphemy to translate the Ten Commandments and the Apostle's Creed. There is something painfully grotesque in imagining a jolly girl of the period talking slang to the babe on her knee; and all good men must frown down such a degradation of the world's mother.

HE IS ON THE YORKTOWN.A Central Missouri Boy Who Will Tussle With the Chilians.

Ben F. Hutchinson, of Boonville, Mo., who is well known in Sedalia and who spent several days here last summer, flirting with some of the Queen City's fair maidens, will be "in it" by a large majority in the event of a war with Chili.

Ensign Hutchinson is a son of Walter R. Hutchinson, cashier of the Commercial bank, at Boonville, and passed with high honors his final examination at Annapolis, last June. Previous to that he had made a two years cruise, on the Boston in European waters, and is now on the Yorktown, which is in the neighborhood of Valparaiso.

Ensign Hutchinson is a very handsome young officer, not over twenty-three years of age, and highly accomplished. That he will acquit himself in a manner to make his Boonville and Sedalia friends proud, should the war open, need not be doubted for a moment. He is made of the right kind of metal and Missouri will have a gallant representative on the sea when the big guns belch forth their fire across the battle waters.

A Dog Executed.

MOBERLY, Mo., Jan. 20.—The celebrated dog case is ended. About four weeks ago a young lady was bitten by an ugly dog, whereupon the girl's father had the dog and its owner, a Mr. Peller, arrested.

Judge McNinch imposed a fine upon the owner of the ferocious canine and ordered the dog killed.

The attorney for the defense took an appeal, after some spirited legal argument on both sides. The costs had already amounted to quite a large sum. Mr. Peller took the dog to Marshal Lynch yesterday and had him shot, to save any further proceedings.

Dr. J. H. Cody, oculist and aurist.

Practice limited to diseases and surgery of the eye and ear and the removing of superfluous hair and facial blemishes. Spectacles adjusted. Office 313 Ohio street, Sedalia, Mo.

Bull Dog and Pug.

From the Hannibal Journal.

War with Chili! War between a big, sound, healthy Bull Dog and a little, weak, half-starved Pug, who is still limp and tame and short of breath because of a recent tussle with other members of the Pug family. Give the Pug time to explain. Don't jump on him forthwith and with both feet simply because he's a Pug and is little and weak and half-starved.

AMUSEMENTS."The Fairies' Well."

The next attraction at the opera house is W. H. Power's company in the beautiful Irish drama "The Fairies' Well," which is a picturesque drama of Irish life. The play contains melody and mirth unbounded, and as those rich qualities are interpreted by a competent company of artists, the entertainment is all that could be desired.

At the opera house Saturday, January 23d.

"Alvin Justin."

The "Alvin Joslin" Comedy Co. will make another appearance in the popular play, that has made its owner famous and rich. At the opera house Tuesday Jan. 26.

A VETERAN SOLDIER.Wm. Hendrickson's Experience with Guerrillas and Down in Alabama.

William Hendrickson, who boards at 416 Ohio street, and who is one of Uncle Sam's pensioners, has had an eventful career, in the 65 years that have brought to him shadow and sunshine, flowers and snow, joy and bereavement, peace and battle. When but a mere lad he enlisted as a private in the United States army and saw a year's active service in the Mexican war. In 1859 he went to Denver and held for a while valuable mining claims in what is now the heart of Colorado's most beautiful and famous city. For one of these claims, which has since yielded many thousands in silver, he traded a common silver watch.

In 1861 Mr. Hendrickson, then a citizen of Illinois, had gone down into Southwest Missouri and purchased 200 head of mules and several head of horses. He was on his way to Rolla with them and in company with five companions, was encamped for the night near a little stream. Along about 12 o'clock a band of guerrillas, headed by the afterward famous Quantrell, dashed into the corral and captured the whole outfit. A lasso was thrown over Mr. Hendrickson's head and he was being dragged through the camp, when a lieutenant, whom Mr. H. is satisfied was Jesse James, dashed up, cut the rope and released him. About that time a burly Irishman, who had been assisting in driving the stock, was shot down by one of the guerrillas because he was too independent and impudent.

Quantrell soon afterward approached the owner of the mules, presented him with $25 and a saddle animal and sent him on his way to Rolla. The horses and mules were taken possession of by the confederates and probably sold, as they were never heard of again by their owner.

Upon his return to Illinois Mr. Hendrickson enlisted in the union army and got through all right until late in the evening of April 9, 1865, when, in a charge on Fort Blakely near Mobile, he received a desperate wound, which has since rendered him an invalid and pensioner. The ball passed through eight folds of an army blanket, cartridge belt, coat and shirt and is still lodged somewhere in the old soldier's body.

There are few men in the state who, in an humble capacity, have served their country more faithfully or gallantly, or who are more deserving of its recognition than the subject of this brief sketch.

FOR A FRIEND'S BIRTHDAY.

Would I could bring you some beautiful gift,
Something to gladden you, something to charm,
A blessing to brighten, to cheer, to uplift,
A shield to protect you from shadow of harm!
Joy that are purest and pleasures most rare.

These at your feet on your birthday I'd lay,
Fill its swift moments with quiet delight,
Make it divine from its earliest ray,
From the gleam of its morn to the dusk of its night.

Empty my hands, but my heart holds for you
All the good wishes of heaven and earth,
Fragrant as roses at dawn in the dew—
With these let me crown the glad day of your birth!

—Celia Thaxter in Ladies' Home Journal.

THAT CITY CHAP.

It seemed very ridiculous to Maria Abigail Tookins that her mother—"Ma," as she called her—would not let her, Abigail, go to the party at neighbor Watkins'. It seemed not only ridiculous, but unjust, for during the two weeks preceding the eventful party night, ma had not only approved of her going, but had even helped her make a new dress for the occasion, and now the night having arrived, for no apparent reason she had declared that Abby must stay at home.

This was Abby's side of the story, and this she kept repeating to herself as she sat in her own room late that afternoon, looking mournfully at the new dress spread out on the bed before her, and occasionally dashing the back of her hand across her eyes to wipe away those tears which, do what she would, persisted in rising rebelliously.

But Mother Tookins' tale was very different. As she told her good friend, Mrs. Hopping, who had just stopped in for a moment's chat, she had a very good reason for keeping her daughter at that night.

"Now, I'll tell you, Mrs. Hopping, because I know you won't ever let it reach any of the Watkinses" (the good lady knew this to be the quickest and most reliable way to get the story to neighbor Watkins' family), "I'll tell you why I'm keeping Abby to home. You see, Tom Watkins has been keepin company with my girl for most a six month, and he's awful hard hit. If I let Abby go ternight there's no tellin what'll happen. She's jest's like as not to get struck with that city feller that's comin down to spend the summer over to the Watkins'. They do say, them that see him before, that he's mighty pleasant. Now then, where'll poor Tom be? I tell you what tis, Mrs. Hoppin'" (and here Mrs. Tookins heaved a deep sigh and leaned a very solemn face over the pan of half peeled potatoes), "I tell you 'would be downright wrong, wicked, for me to let that young girl go and jost p'rhaps ruin that poor Tom's life for him, now wouldn't it?"

"Yes, indeed, Mrs. Tookins," the other woman replied, "if you let her do sech a thing you wouldn't deserve salvation nohow;" and the pious Mrs. Hopping rolled her horror stricken eyes toward the rafters. Soon after she took her leave.

As Mrs. Tookins, standing on her doorstep, watched her friend waddle slowly down the road, she thought to herself: "Now, ef shell only be real quick an tell the Watkinses, I know it'll bring Tom 'round. When he thinks he may lose Abby I guess he'll look alive."

Mrs. Hopping, on the other hand, as she turned at the bend of the road to wave a last goodby to her neighbor said to herself: "I know she thinks that doll faced little Abby of hers has got ahead of my Sarah, but we'll see. I calkerlate Hannah Watkins won't be over particular pleased if I let her think Susan Tookins' lookin for higher game than her Tom for Abby; don't care to have 'em together much while that city feller's 'round; I guess it'll gall her a bit." And Mrs. Hopping chuckled to herself as she tried to hurry along the road.

So the story was told half an hour later at the Watkinses. Mrs. Hopping "jest happened to be passin their way, and thought she'd jest stop in to let them know Abby Tookins couldn't come that night. Too bad, wasn't it? But then Mrs. Tookins was always kinder stuck up," etc., until the rest of the story, as conceived by Mrs. Hopping, had been told.

Meanwhile the poor girl on whose account these good ladies troubled themselves so much sat lonely in her room, thinking of the dance that she was to miss, which all the others were to enjoy and—of Tom.

"He would see them all but her, and

Abigail Hopping, she knew she would be extra nice to Tom tonight, and would look so pretty, and—oh, if Tom would only say whether he cared most for her.

Abby, sitting here alone, thinking of him. He had said everything else, and yet—he was so nice to the other girls, and tonight he would see them all but her.

A thought seemed to strike her; slowly she went down stairs into the kitchen. "Ma, can I help you get the supper?"

"No, Abby, child, supper's all ready," the mother replied. "Now, you just sit down, and pa'll be in a minit, and we'll hev a real good evenin together—I wouldn't mind the old party."

Abby said nothing, and soon, as Mrs. Tookins had predicted, Pa came in. Then they set down to table, and after a long grace, during which Abby's eyes would wander toward the clock, supper began. They didn't talk much. Ma was thinking. "Now, I'm sure, ef Tom Watkins hears I'm keepin Abby away from that city feller on his account, he'll speak right up soon, or he ain't the honest chap I took him fer. He ain't goin to lose her, I don't think, but oh, my! he is slow, to be sure, in comin to the pint." As for Pa Tookins, he was utterly bewildered, and so held his peace. Ma had said Abby was goin to the party and then that she wasn't goin. Pa Tookins believed these facts and asked no questions. Abby, too, was silent. She was listening to the occasional rumble of wheels and the sound of merry voices, as some of the village folks drove by on their way out to the Watkinses; besides, Abby was thinking.

At 8 o'clock that evening, after Pa Tookins had read the prayers and Mother Tookins had said a loud "Amen," Abby bade them good night. "Yes," she knew it was early, but she was tired, so off she went to her little room over the best parlor, leaving her father and mother comfortably ensconced in the big kitchen armchairs. For awhile they talked and nodded, talked till finally both fell into a doze.

Half an hour later a light step on the front stair, that stair so seldom used in the old farmhouse, and an ominous creaking of the front door, opened hardly from one year's end to the other, told that some one had gone out into the night.

It was Abby, dressed in all her finery, going to the party. She would not let all the other girls have Tom, when she ah! she knew how pretty she looked as she stood before the little glass in her room. This she had not forgotten to do, in spite of her hurry—in spite of the dread of being discovered. So here she was, walking alone on this dark, cloudy night the mile between her own house and Neighbor Watkins'.

For awhile all went well as she hurried along the well known road. Then, as she left the open country and entered the wood, a gentle sighing of the trees overhead and the occasional sound of a dead limb falling told this country girl that a storm was coming up.

She hurried on, breathless, excited, thinking now of but one object: of that one purpose which for a week had filled her whole soul—of seeing Tom that night and having him see her; of having him look at her, know how beautiful she was, and then—of having him tell her that he loved her; that she was the only one he loved. And now the wind was howling through the trees and beating her back with terrific force. Fiercer and fiercer it blew, until it seemed as if the great trees were doing battle, swaying, bending their mighty trunks and pelting each other with their shattered branches. On the girl went through the storm; on, on, wild now, hardly heeding the fury about her, determined.

Crash! a falling limb struck her full upon the forehead. She sank with a cry, and then lay upon the road, quiet, insensible to the furious blasts of wind and fearful sounds that filled the forest. Soon after, during a lull in the storm, a rumble of wheels sounded up the road; a wagon drove up; in it were two men. As they reached the dark form lying so still, they stopped. One of them, leaping to the ground, bent over the young girl and lifted her head.

"Here, driver," he said, "get out and help me lift this girl into the wagon; she's hurt. Thank heaven I didn't wait in the village all night. How much farther is it to this Watkins farm?" he added impatiently, as he tried to make the girl comfortable.

"Quarter of a mile, sir," the driver replied, and once more they started on.

Five minutes later the wagon drew up before the Watkins house. The merry company within was disturbed by a loud knocking on the door. Mrs. Watkins opened it, and seeing who her visitor was said hospitably:

"Oh, you've come, sir! Why, we thought you must ha' missed the night train. Come right in out of the"—

"There's trouble out here," he interrupted her.

"What!" a young man coming from the inner room exclaimed, and, without waiting for coat and hat, he went out with the stranger to the wagon.

And then he saw who it was that lay there. Taking her in his strong arms, he carried her gently into the house. As the warmth and light touched her, Abby opened her eyes. For a moment she looked lovingly into the young man's face, and then said half dreamily:

"Oh, Tom! is it you? I came to see you through the storm, and now—I'm happy." The little head fell upon his shoulder, and again the girl became unconscious.

The next day Mrs. Tookins, her face lighted with a happy smile, said to Mrs. Hopping, who came in to inquire after that dear child, Abby, "And to think that it should all hev ben brought bout by that city chap!"—H. De W. in Harvard Advocate.

Finally, one morning several years ago, there was cast up on the shore the shinbone covered with the stocking. This stocking Annie vowed that she had knitted with her own fingers. In spite of opposition the town hearse was brought out and the shinbone, stocking and all, was carefully placed in a box. With due ceremony it was buried, prayers were prayed over it, hymns were sung over it, and above it was placed the headstone bearing the inscription: "Gone, but not forgotten."—Cor. St. Louis Republic.

Under it was laid away, not a body, but a shinbone covered with a red woolen stocking.

The man of whom it is supposed the bone was a part went off fishing one day and never returned. Days passed by, and the wife and friends grew anxious.

Neighbors in whispers suggested that John Anderson, grown tired of Annie's shrewish ways and high temper, might have committed suicide or left for parts unknown. But Annie felt assured that John was drowned.

MRS. WRIGHT BURIED.The Funeral Services Held at the M. E. Church, South, This Afternoon.

The funeral services of Mrs. C. E. Wright took place at the M. E. church, South, at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon. There was a large attendance of relatives and friends and the tribute of sermon, song and flowers and tears was such as eloquently bespoke the affection and esteem in which the deceased was held. At the conclusion of the services at the church, the remains were borne to the city cemetery and laid to rest beneath the winter snow, until the resurrection trumpet shall arouse from their last sleep the sainted dead.

The pall-bearers were Messrs. William Benrath, Francis Downing, Fred Woods, Robert Tison, Henry Bottoms and George Wright.

The officiating ministers were Rev. A. H. Stephens of the Cumberland Presbyterian church, and Rev. W. B. North, of the M. E. church, south.

The Hutton Fund.

The acquittal of Tom Hutton of the murder of C. C. Deffenbaugh at Nevada last September, calls to mind the fact that, immediately after the tragedy, a defense fund was raised for Hutton in all the cities and principal towns of Missouri. Contributions were received at the leading hotels, from traveling salesmen, and in the aggregate must have amounted to a large sum.

At Sicher's hotel and Hotel Kaiser about $40 was collected to assist in defraying the expenses of Hutton's defense.

Will Preach at Springfield.

Rev. T. M. Cobb returned last evening to his home in Lexington, from whence he goes to-morrow to Springfield for a short time. Rev. Mr. Cobb is a powerful and logical preacher, and is warmly admired in the Queen City as elsewhere in the state. He filled the pulpit of Dr. North during the past three Sundays.

Favors Boies.

Nimrod Crigler, of Longwood, was in the city to-day on business. Mr. Crigler, while he can neither hear nor speak, is nevertheless one of the staunchest democrats in the world. He favors Governor Boies, of Iowa, as president and names Governor Cleveland second choice.

Will Resign.

J. R. Grant, assistant day ticket agent at the depot, has handed in his resignation to take effect February 1st.

This is a surprise and a source of much regret to "Rand's" host of friends. During Mr. Grant's connection with the office his efficiency has constantly increased with his responsibilities and his unvarying courtesy to all has made for him a warm place in the hearts of many people. He has several positions offered him, but has not decided which one he will accept.

The Home Doing Finely.

Capt. F. P. Bronaugh, of Boonville, passed through Sedalia this morning on his way home from St. Louis. He said that he called on Mrs. Cassidy, of the "Daughters of the Confederacy," yesterday and found that she had $12,000 ready to turn over to the Higginsville Confederate Home fund. Captain Bronaugh informed a DEMOCRAT reporter that the Home is getting along nicely and that it promises to be one of the finest institutions of the kind in the country. There are about fifty-four ex-confederates at the home.

To Winter in Galveston.

Dr. Parberry and wife, parents of Mrs. John D. Crawford, left last night for Galveston, Texas, where they will spend the winter fanned by the warm winds of the south seas, secure from chilling blasts of the north.

Go to Harris for hard coal, stove and cord wood. Tel. 115.

The American Security company of New York has established a branch office in Sedalia, and are prepared to receive applications to furnish bonds for bank cashiers, book-keepers and employees in Sedalia and Pettis county. For rates and terms call on R. C. Sneed, agent, Equitable building.

Who is Martin?

Telephone 26 and find out.

Died Near Pleasant Green.

John Tillman died at his home near Pleasant Green, Cooper county, last night. He was one of the oldest and most respected citizens in that locality and was the father of J. T. Tillman, a merchant at Clifton City.

Have a Cigar.

"La Pluma" Jim O'Brien is all smiles over the fact that a little daughter has made her appearance at his house.

A SUCCESS.The Oyster Supper Given by the City Officials Well Patronized.

If Charlie Carroll, Bell Hutchinson and Ernest Lamy should be out of a job in the near future, it is understood that several prominent hotel keepers will offer them lucrative positions as waiters. It was amusing last night to watch the city fathers rushing around filling the orders for the large crowd that attended the supper.

There were a large number of ladies voted for in the contest, which was closed at 11 o'clock, and resulted in Mrs. I. Frensdorf securing the gold watch and chain by 452 votes. Mrs. Walsh received 344 votes and received the diamond ring.

The Sedalia military band furnished the music and added much to the pleasure of the evening.

The tickets sold are not all reported but it is thought that between $250 and $300 will be realized.

Notice to Contractors.

Sealed bids will be received for the construction of the church of the Sacred Heart. Plans and specifications may be seen at the residence of the pastor, Rev. B. Dickman. Committee reserve the right to reject any and all bids.

BUILDING COMMITTEE.

Go to Harris for farmers' coal—the best in two states. Tel. 115.

Has Diphtheria.

The Marshall Democrat-News brings the sad intelligence that Rev. A. R. Faris is suffering from an attack of diphtheria.

Rev. Faris was formerly pastor of the Southern Methodist church of this city and is now stationed at Marshall. His many friends here will anxiously await news of his condition and will earnestly hope for his speedy recovery.

If you want any canned fruit, confections, extra select oysters or fresh eggs and butter, call on Geo. W. Smith at 613 Ohio street.

Fresh fish Friday and Saturday.

Gospel Temperance Meeting.

The meeting held last evening at the Christain Chapel on Moniteau, between Fourteenth and Fifteenth streets, was a marvelous success. The meeting was conducted by Evangelist A. P. M. Gross, the result being eleven signers to the temperance pledge. Mr. Gross called on Mr. J. H. Bowron, Col.

J. H. Mankin and Mr. Nelson who responded with most eloquent and enthusiastic arguments.

To the regret of all present the meetings were discontinued by Mr. Gross for a short time on account of Evangelist O. A. Witmer receiving the sad news from San Antonio, Texas, of his brother's death and the DEMOCRAT extends its warmest sympathy to Mr. Witmer in this sad moment.

More Evidence.

Constable Ramsey went to Georgetown yesterday afternoon and secured more evidence against Tom Shackelford by finding a coat, part of the property stolen from the ice plant, in the possession of a colored woman named Murphy.

She explains her connection with the case by saying that a dance was in progress on Main street on the night of the burglary and during a fight which arose the coat was thrown into her lap. The owner afterwards failed to claim it.

MARY MENEFEE.

Oratorical Contest.

A young gentleman in Sedalia, who has had considerable experience in oratorical contests, suggests that a local entertainment of this character, gotten up for the charity hospital fund, would prove popular and profitable.

The DEMOCRAT is ready to second all worthy enterprises calculated to increase the fund and advance the good cause, and the suggestion referred to seems to be a practicable one in every particular and could easily be carried out.

New Hair Dressing Parlors.

If you want your hair nicely dressed in the latest style or your hands well manicured, ladies, you will do well to call on Mrs. Smith, room 15 east of stairway in Dempsey block, corner Second and Ohio streets. She is just back from the east where she has been getting the latest styles.

Received of B. S. Rembaugh, ten dollars, the premium offered for the best salt rising light bread made from B. S. Rembaugh's fancy patent flour. MAGGIE S. MONTGOMERY.

PERSONALS.

Detective J. J. Kinney left for Texas this morning.

G. W. Withers is talking Fairbanks scales to the people of Booneville to-day.

Dr. Kiefer, a prominent physician of Cole Camp, is the guest of Chief Surgeon E. F. Yancey.

Henry Bottoms came up from Parsons this morning to attend the funeral of Mrs. C. C. Wright.

Dr. M. F. Collins, grand medical examiner for the Knights of Father Matthew, goes to St. Louis to-night.

Henry Botous, of the Parsons general office, came in this morning and will spend a few days with friends.

Geo. Gloyd and wife returned to their home in Ridgeway, Colorado, last night after a pleasant visit with Sedalia friends.

Miss Hattie Biggars, after a pleasant visit with the Misses Mertz, on Broadway, returned to her home in St. Louis at noon.

W. Sprigg, claim agent of the M. K. & T. railway, with headquarters at Fort Scott, Kansas, is in the city on official business.

Harry Hawkins went to Clinton this morning to attend the grand ball given by the young ladies of Baird college to-night.

Miss Cora Long, a pretty and popular young lady from Booneville, is the guest of the Misses Morgan on East Third street.

Guy Cope, the active and popular local representative of Dunn's Commercial Agency, went to Kansas City yesterday in the interest of the agency.

Theodore Schwartz, of Schwartz & Jacobson, went to Windsor this morning with his force to complete the tin work on the new M. K. & T. depot.

Allan E. Sweet, whom Mr. Grant succeeded will take his place. Mr. Sweet is well known in Sedalia and formerly filled the position with much credit to himself.

This morning's St. Louis Republic announces in its society column that Mr. and Mrs. Campbell McFarlane will give a progressive euchre party to-morrow evening.

G. R. Dunn, representing the freight department of the C. B. & Q. with headquarters in Chicago, was in the city this morning on his way to Nevada. He will then make a business trip through Kansas.

Joe Herrington returned from Detroit this morning where he had been to attend the funeral of his brother Robert H. Herrington who died in that city recently of consumption. Mr. Herrington says that Detroit is in the lead when it comes to cold weather.

Died this Morning.

Mrs. John Buckley died at her home, three miles west of Sedalia, of heart disease, at 4:10 o'clock this morning. Mrs. Buckley was a most estimable lady and leaves a family.

The funeral services will be conducted by Rev. Father Murphy at the church of St. Vincent de Paul at 11 o'clock to-morrow morning.

Go to W. J. Letts, corner Engineer and Fifth streets, for staple and fancy groceries, fresh oysters and country produce.

Donations for the Poor.

Officer Murphy received this morning from C. D. Minter twenty-five bushels of coal; also $1 from an unknown source as donations to the poor of Sedalia. All such favors are most acceptable and will be properly distributed.
